

Environmental Policy Statement

Loch Lomond Golf Club

Loch Lomond Golf Club is highly committed to the maintenance and preservation of the natural environment for future generations through a sustainable and environmentally-friendly approach in their business methods.

Their Management Teams endorse this approach and implement these practices throughout the Estate as they recognise the sustainable business methods, not only locally, but nationally and globally. On the Estate some of the practices in place include nature and landscape conservations, utilisation of IPM strategy (Integrated Pest Management), water resource management, waste minimisation and recycling and energy efficiency.

The Company is highly committed to:

- a. Establishing a programme of continuous improvement in its robust environmental management systems to address a wide range of environmental issues;
- b. Improving employees' understanding and commitment to environmental practices through structured communication and training in a safe working environment;
- c. Raising awareness of relevant environmental issues among the Members, guests, staff and the local community;
- d. Developing and maintaining constructive relationships with environmental organisations to ensure good communication and best practice;
- e. Introducing sustainable operating procedures and methods to minimise overall impact on the environment; and
- f. Ensuring a programme of continuous improvement through regular review of environmental policy and practice.
